Must We Watch Them Die?

A soldier drowned in Carmel Bay Wednesday. Sunday, the ambulance was called twice to administer first aid to a boy and a girl suffering from shock following their rescue from the tide that would have taken them out to sea had not others risked their lives to save them.

We have at least one drowning a year. After each of these tragic occurrences, Carmel citizens ask, "Can't we do something about it?" The answer, according to Councilman Fred Godwin, commissioner of health and safety, who has made an extensive study both of the current that sweeps Carmel Bay swimmers out to sea, and of the practicability of installing rescue and safety devices here, is that nothing can be done but to warn people of the risk they take when they swim in the ocean off Carmel beach.

Last year the city council took measures to warn bathers. It put up signs stating that the beach is unsafe. That these signs are inadequate is demonstrated by the following letter written to the Pine Cone Cymbal after the near drownings of Sunday and before Wednesday's fatality.

Carmel, California.
February 16, 1943

To the Editor of the Pine Cone-Cymbal:

I am a newcomer to Carmel, and let me say right here, I love it so much that I shall never want to leave.

Spending the glorious afternoon of last Sunday on the beach, I was the frightened witness of four near drownings—all saved—I am thankful to say.

I am told this is one of the major problems of this beautiful little city.

Right now it is more serious than ever before. Many of the boys of our Army and Navy come from states which have no ocean and they are intoxicated by the wonder of it—its grand waves and cool green depths.

These boys deserve every pleasure life can offer them at this time, but they must not be allowed to risk their precious lives.

I'm not wise enough to find a solution of a problem which has been studied by experts, but two suggestions occur to me which might help the situation.

One: the posting of many signs in conspicuous places all over the beach, explaining why it is dangerous. That rip-tide is new to many who are strong swimmers in quiet waters.

Two: get the cooperation of both Army and Navy headquarters nearby urging lectures to the boys, explaining the dangers and vagaries of our ocean.

I am a mother and grandmother of boys: I love them, and we can't spare one.

I wish I could tell you the name of the young navy boy who went out twice in less than two hours, battling his way to the victims of the rip-tide in almost the same spot. He came in exhausted, but disclaiming all praise.

It's just this gallant courage in our boys which our enemies are facing right now—to their terror

Soldier Drowns Off Carmel Beach

Private Daniel Hall Finch, 28, a native of Oklahoma, was drowned in the surf at the foot of Ocean avenue Wednesday afternoon.

A group of soldiers had been doing calisthenics on the beach under Lt. M. A. Smith, and Finch and Smith went into the surf to wash off the sand. Smith noticed the undertow, spoke of it to Finch and went ashore. A few moments later he heard a spectator on the beach shout that a swimmer was in distress. He turned, saw Finch struggle, heard his cry for help, then saw him go under. The body has not yet been recovered.

Sunday, Bob Williams, 16, of Salinas was rescued from drowning by Lt. J. H. Beatty of Del Monte Pre-Flight school. The same afternoon Elizabeth Stanley, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Earl Stanley, Carmel, was rescued by DeWitt Appleton, Vincent Torras of Carmel and Phillip Richard Benedict, a seaman stationed at Del Monte Pre-Flight school.

There were two other cases of bathers in distress off Carmel beach the same day.

3 Bitten by Rabid Dog Sat.

Laboratory tests revealed that a Carmel dog which died yesterday after showing symptoms of rabies was infected with the disease. Carmel is in a serious position since the animal bit five dogs on the beach Saturday, escaped, and bit an undetermined number of animals on its way from Ninth and San Antonio to Second and Dolores.

Three people, who have since received anti-rabies treatment, were bitten.

County health authorities urge the cooperation of Carmel citizens in keeping their dogs confined until the danger is over. They add that if voluntary cooperation is not forthcoming, Carmel will be put under quarantine, putting even greater hardship on animals and

Abalone League Opens Sunday

By ROBERT DOERR

Play Ball!

As Umpire Doc Staniford's voice rings out over Bardarson Field this Sunday afternoon, Carmel citizens of all ages will inaugurate the 1943 season of the famous Abalone League. A large crowd is expected to be on hand for the opening festivities, and the committee, headed by Staniford, has arranged a pogram that is fairly studded with the names of local celebrities.

With the initial remarks scheduled for 1:30, the program will get under way with J. W. Getsinger, superintendent of schools, introducing P. A. McCreery, who will act as master of ceremonies. It is expected that Andy Jacobsen, chairman of the county board of supervisors, will be on hand to

Clark Flies Home From Africa; Tells of High Morale

Dr. J. Harvey Clark returned to his home in Carmel late Wednesday afternoon—arriving by plane from Africa.

This is his first trip home since his departure more than a year ago as a member of the medical staff connected with a civilian aviation project under government control, and during all this time he has been stationed at a nameless point in northeastern Africa.

Looking bronzed and fit after his week's journey by plane, this tall, erect, pleasant-voiced man who appears scarcely old enough to have one of his three children a high school graduate, brushed aside the Pine Cone Cymbal's apology for calling on him at nine o'clock in the morning. With a twinkle in his eye he explained that during the trip home his normal hour of arising was four a.m.

The trip out was made by boat, a circuitous route because of the submarine menace. None were sighted, the only rigor of the journey being its monotonous length—two months. His station was far away from the fighting zone, and while mail from home came with miraculous regularity, requiring only ten days, news of what was going on elsewhere in Africa reached the United States long before it reached there. One of Dr. Clark's first reactions upon touching home shores was that war, the preparations for war, the realization of the war effort and most of all, the sacrifices occasioned by food rationing, are much more obvious here than in northeastern Africa. Over there he noted the uniform excellence with which we are feeding, arming and quartering our American forces. During the past months he had read much about food rationing here, but was scarcely

Military and Naval Heads Take Action

On Thursday morning, the day after the drowning of a soldier off Carmel beach, orders were issued from Del Monte Pre-Flight school, the Naval Section Base at Monterey, Fort Ord and the Presidio of Monterey ruling that waters off all the Peninsula beaches out of bounds for officers and enlisted men.

In the case of Del Monte Pre-Flight, the order is temporary.

Council Votes Saving in CD

The City Council Wednesday night adopted a program submitted by Kathleen Prewett, new coordinator of Civilian Defense, that will effect a saving of $100 a month in C.D. expenditures.

Last year $5632.12 was spent in Carmel for Civilian Defense.

According to the plan, Civilian Defense will confine its activities exclusively to the protective services. Headquarters will be moved from the office on Sixth street to rent-free quarters in the building inspector's office in city hall.

Mrs. Harriett Rowntree, executive secretary, appeared before the Council to offer her resignation and request that the office on Sixth street be kept open. She pointed out the services that office had been rendering in helping the Monterey rationing board, in recruiting workers for the canneries, in doing clerical work for other services in town, and in furnishing information regarding rationing.

The council answered that these activities came outside the province of Civilian Defense, Mayor P. A. McCreery saying, "I do not think it is incumbent on the citi-

$1000 Donation Starts Off Red Cross War Drive

Mr. Sidney Trevvett, Carmel chairman of the forthcoming Red Cross War Fund Drive, called a meeting of his advance subscription committee on Tuesday morning to inform them of their duties and to discuss with them vital points in both national and local activities. Carmel's quota for both local and national Funds is $18,900.00 — nearly $4,000.00 more than was raised in the combined Roll Call and War Fund drives in 1941 — but in view of past experience in meeting its quotas, Mr. Trevvett and his committee are confident that Carmel Chapter can reach its goal.

A $1,000 subscription from a Red Cross member (who prefers to remain anonymous) opened the campaign, the donor designating that $500.00 is to go to the War Fund and $500.00 to Carmel's new surgical dressings unit.

Carmel to Have Surgical Dressing Unit on Dolores St.

On or about March 1, the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross will open a new room on the ground floor of its headquarters building on Dolores street, which will house a Surgical Dressings Unit. Already the chapter has been assigned a quota for March, and the materials have arrived for making Carmel's share of the 180,000,000 surgical dressings needed to meet the War Department's requirements.

The room is being remodeled and suitably furnished for the work to be performed there, and as soon as this is complete, production will immediately get under way.

Mrs. Frederick Godwin, who has been appointed chairman of the unit, urges that all women wishing to take part in this project register at the Red Cross desk in the Post Office on Fridays, or at Red Cross Headquarters any day between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Persons so registered will be notified of the exact opening date, and of further details regarding the work.

Catholic Women to Hold Conference Here on Sunday

By MRS. ELSIE MARTINEZ

The National Council of Catholic Women of the Monterey-Fresno Diocese will hold its sem-annual conference in the Monterey Deanery at Carmel on Sunday, February 21. As the date of the conference lies between the anniversaries of the birthdays of the Father of Our Country and the Great Liberator, the theme of the conference will be "Catholicity and Patriotism."

His Excellency, Bishop Philip G. Scher is expected to attend the Conference and also outstanding members of the Catholic clergy and laity.

There will be a morning session at Crespi Hall at 10:30 a.m. and luncheon at the Pine Inn at 12:30 with the ladies of the Carmel Mission Altar Society as hostesses. The afternoon session includes speakers and a musical program.

The guest speaker of the afternoon will be Dr. R. Ellis Roberts, eminent English scholar, author and editor. The title of his address is "Democracy, Order and the Catholic Church." Dr. Roberts is a personal friend of many of the distinguished Catholic prelates and literary men of England, among whom are Father Ronald Knox, Hillaire Belloc, Arnold Lunn and the late Gilbert K. Chesterton.

The musical program will consist of two solos sung by Gladys Young, well known singer of San Francisco and member of the Carmel Mission Choir. She will be accompanied by Florence Feldman, organist and pianist, who studied under Dr. Reginald Mills Silby, former organist of St. Paul's London. Mrs. Feldman made a special study of Liturgical Music and was, for a time, organist of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, Omaha, Nebraska.

The conference will close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Fighting French Relief Shop to Open Here

A small French shop for Fighting French relief will open in the Pine Inn Hotel on Ocean avenue, Saturday, February 20 sponsored by a group of American and French women, and managed by Helen Vye.

The money raised by the Fighting French Relief Committee goes for supplies such as ambulances, hospital equipment, food and clothing sent to far flung battle fronts in Equatorial Africa, Syria and the Isles of the Pacific.

The shop is being given rent free by Harrison Godwin and the furniture by several generous persons who are enthusiastic about the movement. The committee will appreciate visits to the shop and donations of small articles to be sold for the benefit of the Fighting French.

The committee this week received a congratulatory letter from Muriel Glasgow, Pebble Beach resident, who is now in New York devoting all her time in secretarial work for the Fighting French Relief Committee there. She reports that Colonel Glasgow is now in New Caledonia.

Roland Hayes In Good Voice Despite Illness

By RACHEL MORTON

Considering that Roland Hayes, Negro tenor, spent last week in bed with influenza, and for two days before the concert Sunday in Sunset Auditorium could not speak aloud, we are indeed fortunate that we had an opportunity to have heard him sing at all. There were signs of huskiness at times, but the voice itself was intact, and under normal circumstances would have been as free and glorious as it was a fortnight ago in San Francisco.

To listen to a song recital by Roland Hayes is not only an emotional experience, it is a spiritual one as well. I once said to him, "You must be a deeply religious man to sing the 'Spirituals' as you do." He answered, "You know how difficult it is to have a successful career, and you are white. How do you suppose that I, being black, could have come this far without God?"

Roland Hayes is unsurpassed in the singing of Negro Spirituals. It would be a hardened heart indeed which could not be reverently stirred by the religious fervor of this great artist .His "Panels" of the sacred episodes of our Master's life were poignantly painted in warm and beautiful tonal color. One could almost see the young Jesus in the Temple in the masterly interpreted song, "Lil' Boy — How Old Are You?" while "Weepin' Mary" was utter conversion.

But in the more classical repertoire of song, Roland Hayes is a musician's singer. Here, the exquisite subtlity of interepretation; the diction, more beautiful than the language itself, the delicate graduation of tone; the polished phrasing and finely spun legato— here shine the rare gifts of the great artist.

In a song by the brilliant accompanist Reginald Boardman, Mr. Hayes rose to very dramatic heights. The song is reminiscent in mood, but strong in character and well worth hearing. Mr. Boardman is an artist worthy of Mr. Hayes. His accompaniments were an integral part of the splendid whole.

From the very first song "Come Again, Sweet Love," with its tenderly whispered "to see, to hear, to touch, to die," through the glorious German group: the shimmer of Debussy's Fantoches, into the limpid little pool of Slovinsky, Roland Hayes wove webs of loveliness about us.

In the encores, how simply, yet how delightfully and convincingly Mr. Hayes told us stories —some sad, as in the Shepherd Song; or piquant as in the "Lantern" and the Patois Creole song, or touchingly expressive, as in "You're Tired Chile', Sit Down."

How good that the Father of us all bestows gifts so impartially upon us, and how heartening that we of white skins may be inspired and enriched by the nobility of the art which is Roland Hayes'.

New Tennis Courts To Be Opened Sat. in Match with Monterey

The Carmel High school tennis courts have recently been completed, and they are now ready for use. These courts are in a favorable location below the athletic fields and ought to prove very useful to the students and townspeople in the future.

Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, these courts will be officially open to use when the Carmel High school tennis team meets the Monterey High school team in a match.

Coach David Marrs of the Carmel team has invited the public to bring their racquets and watch these matches. Afterwards anyone who wishes may play on the courts. The students and faculty of the high school sincerely hope that everyone who can possibly attend the opening will do so and make it a grand one.—H. B.

Abalone League Opens Sunday

toss out the first ball, and with a battery of Police Chief Fred Moore of Monterey pitching and Roy Fraties of Carmel behind the plate, Tal Josselyn will have to struggle mightily to start the season with a hit. Judge Ray Baugh has also been invited to take part in the ceremonies, which will include raising of the Flag and the National Anthem, as well as a fitting pause in memory of those Abalone-ites who are no longer with us. An inovation this year will be the raising of an official Abalone League flag, the work of Herb Hoeser, one of the team captains. If time permits after all of the spellbinders are through, there may also be a couple of ball games, featuring such time honored teams as the Tigers, Giants, Shamrocks and Pilots. Captains are Herb Hoeser, Mike Balazs, Hap Hasty and Bob Doerr.

This will be the Captain of the Shamrock's first and last game of the season. Hap Hasty has received his notice to report for duty in the army Wednesday for training as an officer candidate.

This year a special invitation has been made to service men to participate in the Abalone League Rather than enter a team, it is hoped that they will be able to add players to each of the teams and thereby join in more completely with the Abalone spirit. It may be safely said that this league is like no other in organized baseball. Boys from the Seventh Grade up, High School girls, and wives and girl friends are liberally sprinkled throughout each team. With a lady on first base and fast pitching curtailed, it becomes a wide open affair, with even those who claim a meager knowledge of baseball able to compete with former stars of other leagues.

To Hal Buffa, High School Coach, will fall the thankless task of getting equipment and handling the financial details. He will probably be assisted by Herb Hoeser, who seems to be on hand whenever there is a job to do.

If you have not already signed up, be on hand Sunday and you will probably be able to get on one of the teams. With many of the players uncertain how long they will be in Carmel, each team is hoping to have plenty of substitutes to fill in when the catcher is called into the Army or the right fielder leaves for a defense plant.

zens of Carmel to spend $225 a month to maintain an information bureau. The business of C.D. is to give the public protection in an emergency."

In accepting Mrs. Rowntree's resignation effective March 1, the mayor said that Carmel owed her a debt of gratitude for her fine work in organizing Civilian Defense in its first phases.

The Sixth street office will close March 1.

Among other C D matters brought before the council was the announcement by Mayor P. A. McCreery that Jack Gilbert, "the chief go-getter for the Salvage Drive" had been appointed Chief Warden and had been asked to submit a plan to the council that will meet the federal requirements and have the confidence of the people of Carmel. The new plan is to be worked out with the full co-operation the police and fire departments and will eliminate duplications of services and provide for the simplification of the control center.

A letter from County Civilian Defense headquarters in Salinas was read accepting Kathleen Prewett as coordinator for the unincorporated areas adjacent to Carmel.

On the request of the Peninsula rationing board in Monterey, the Council voted $15 as Carmel's share in maintaining the office.

The Carmel Red Cross was granted permission to stretch banners across the streets during their war fund campaign.

Councilman L .L. Dewar announced that F. E. Glover had taken a job in a defense plant in San Francisco leaving the city without a street sweeper, and that the street department would do its best to handle the job with the present crew.

As Glover's departure leaves the town without a dog catcher also, Councilman Fred Godwin was authorized to make arrangements either with the S.P.C.A. in Pacific Grove or with the County to take over the work. Godwin pointed out that dog licenses became delinquent in Carmel March 1.

The meeting adjourned with the announcement that next meeting would be held March 3.

Rhys is no stranger in Carmel. It will be remembered that he came here with his wife, Lucita, and young Rhys, Jr., intending to stay a few weeks and write a pamphlet on Russia, then remained for three years to produce a volume entitled "The Soviets," which was hailed as one of the most important studies of the Russian people yet produced. Those three years produced also a wide circle of warm friendships for the Williams family, and a still wider group of interested listeners who packed the Playhouse to capacity and undoing. —E. Crichton.

Mrs. Crichton spent the afternoon on the beach and didn't know there were signs there. How many others go in swimming without knowing of their existence?

What the military authorities do is out of our hands, but we can do something about warning signs that fail in their purpose.

San Francisco tried a device several years ago that proved successful in saving lives. At an unusually dangerous intersection, the city put up a sign and painted in letters a foot high, "24 people have been killed at this intersection so far this year." They kept a tally of fatalities. As time went on, records show a sharp decline in accidents at that corner.

Carmel could follow suit. A sign of billboard proportions at the foot of Ocean avenue where most people park their cars before going onto the beach, listing the number of lives that have been lost off Carmel Beach should have a deterrent effect on the foolhardy and enlighten the uninformed.

It would be a gruesome thing, for the number of deaths is high, but it would not be so distressing as the death struggles that take place before our eyes each year when people drown in our bay, and we are helpless to save them.

Navy bluejacket, as he has just reported for duty and training at the huge U. S. Naval Training Station located at Farragut in the mountains of northern Idaho.

During the next several weeks he will learn the fundamentals of seamanship and undergo intensive physical hardening. On completion of this training he will be assigned to a Navy Service school for specialized training or will report immediately to the U .S. fleet for active duty.

Jimmy is a native of Carmel and since his Sunset school days has taken an active part in life here, following in the footsteps of his dad, the oldest pioneer still playing in the Abalone League, where father and son have been pitted against each other as rival pitchers. They have been rivals, too, at steelhead fishing at the mouth of the Carmel River, where up until his departure for boot camp on February 1, Jimmy was in the lead.

Clark Flies Home From N. E. Africa

prepared for its reality, and the morale with which it is being accepted.

There were no troops stationed in Dr. Clark's immediate vicinity, but many officers and a large civilian population. The climate closely resembles that of Southern California, but the condition of the natives he described as pitiful. Since the coming of the British and Americans, and in spite of the effects of war, their living conditions have been much improved, and their attitude is consequently very friendly.

Dr. Clark's unit had gone prepared to give medical care to men, but discovered that a large part of their duties would entail caring for the British women sent away from the fighting zones. It was necessary at once to improvise obstetrical instruments and equipment.

One of the most heartening observations made by Dr. Clark was on his return trip. Many stops were made at isolated outposts, and he was struck by the amazing spirit and morale of the American soldiers, in the face of grim duties and cut off from the outside world or any suggestion of bands, banners and slogans.

He comes back bringing many messages from his colleague in service and well-known Carmel citizen, Dr. Howard Clark, of whom he has seen much while in Africa. Dr. Howard Clark, he states, is in the best of health and still at his post.

Carmel looked good to Dr. J. Harvey Clark on his first morning back in the pleasant Santa Lucia home in which he established his family upon entering the service a year and a half ago, a period in which Mrs. Clark and their three children, Katurah, J. Harvey, Jr., a student at the high school and Jacqueline, now attending the Douglas School, have made themselves a part of Carmel life. He is a native of Redlands, California, and graduated from Johns Hopkins. He received his hospital training in the Los Angeles County Hospital and in Hungary, at both Budapest and Vienna Until he volunteered his services for the present war project, he was a practicing physician in Beverly Hills—but for many years he has been coming to Carmel, and loving it more each time.

He is especially glad to return this week.—I. A.

Science Struggles On with Little Help Speaker Tells Lions

Handicapped by lack of funds, and working with antiquated equipment including microscopes that were invented in the eighteenth century, scientists still have made discoveries in a dozen fields that have been of inestimable benefit to civilization. Properly financed and equipped, how much greater might have been their achievements and how much more mankind would have profited by their work!

This was the theme of a talk given by Dr. D. T. MacDougal, one of Carmel's distinguished scientists, at the Lions' Club dinner meeting Tuesday night at Pine Inn.

Speaking of the contributions of science to the present war, he described the use and nature of synthetic rubber, airplane and submarine detectors and the great strides made by medicine in treating the wounded.

He came as the guest of Lion President Lloyd Weer, and was introduced by Ken Carleton.

Al Young, member of the Monterey Bay Boy Scout Council, preceding Dr. MacDougal on the program, explained to the members and guests the need of Scout leaders here and the necessity of carrying on the work, especially during war times.

Harry Farley was taken in as a new member. Guests of the meeting were Andy Wiemann, L. L. Dewar, Robert Blessing and Ed Cochrane, INS sports writer, who with his wife, has been spending the winter in Carmel. He is leaving for Hollywood and the East next week, but promised his friends here to return to Carmel in the Fall.

A peek in Parsons' window the other day was amply rewarded by the sight of a beautiful pair of old Sheffield candlesticks done in the old fused process, graceful and delicate pieces which are very hard to find these days. And inside the shop I noticed a really adorable Victorian epergne, one of those charming silver what-nots in the shape of morning glories on a vine, the morning glories being either for candles or flowers, depending on the whim of the epergne's owner. Other objets d'art which would please you are the rare and lovely Sheffield Tea Pot with its three slender legs and alcohol lamp, and a 4-piece tea and coffee set which is one of the handsomest I have seen in many a year.—K. V GARDEN

By CHARLES A. WATSON

As I have said before, planting a Victory garden will give you a lot of pleasure as well as being profitable, but you must remember the old saying, "if you don't put anything in it you won't get much out of it" is doubly true of gardening. So before you plant, get your ground ready by putting lots of barnyard manure over the top. Then spade it in as deep as you can with a round-pointed shovel and give it a good soaking to start the humus working so as to be ready when the plants or seeds are put in. For plants are like animals. They live off one another, and as one rots, another picks up the humus and grows. There is now a good supply of manure to be had by the sack at our local nurseries, or by the truck load from dealers.

The main thing about planting seed is to get it at an even depth. This can be accomplished by a simple method of taking a piece of board three or four feet long and beveling the edge to form a wedge. Then, when the ground is ready, press the beveled edge down a half inch into the soil, scatter the seed in the groove, and drag a rake upside down over the grooves to fill them up. Sprinkle lightly and wait for the seeds to come up. In this manner, you give the seeds a solid foundation with a soft, light cover and get them at an even depth, so they will come up even. Above all, never tramp the soil over small seeds. You only do that when planting large coarse seeds such as beans, peas or corn.

BIRD CONTROL

By A. A. Tavernetti
Farm Advisor

Bird injury to young victory garden seedlings can effectively be prevented by covering the seeded rows with tree and brush trimmings.

Due to the scarcity of wire netting for protection, many plantings have been destroyed by birds. The placing of brush and tree trimmings or branches over seeds will serve to protect the seedlings from bird injury and will also give some protection from frost and soil baking due to the sun. In addition to protection from birds, the covering will discourage cats and dogs, as well as keep children from tramping over the plantings.

After the seedlings have reached a satisfactory stage of growth, the brush should be removed gradually in order to allow the tender plants to harden and withstand direct sunlight.

Any type of tree or brush prunings that is not too coarse can be satisfactorily used. These should be placed rather thickly over the seed before germination takes place so that birds will not have easy access to the ground.

PLEASED TO MEETCHA

Introducing the newcomers to the first people with whom they come in contact on arriving in town—

The Post Office Gang

You arrive in town, gasp at the loveliness of the ocean sparkling through the trees, and then ask somebody where is the post office because you want to see if there is a letter from Mother with whom you've left the children until you can find a house. You stand in line before the general delivery window, and inch by inch you gain yardage until finally you are face to face with a smallish man with a clipped way of speaking, swift and nervous way of moving and a harried expression. This is John Wood. If there aren't too many behind you in line and you show a disposition for conversation, John will accomodate, but don't get into an argument with him over baseball because you can't win. He knows the records of all the big league pitchers and he's a city slicker who has been transferred from the New York Post Office.

Now that you have your letter from Mother, heed your impulse to increase the traffic problem by standing in the middle of the postoffice to read it while people thread around you. Though this isn't good form elsewhere, it is not only acceptable in Carmel, it is the custom. When you're satisfied that Jimmie is recovering from his cold and Mother hasn't been letting little Juney skip eating her cereal, you remember that what with traveling and all, you haven't had time to buy your bond this month, so you move on down to the money order window.

Here you find an exceedingly tall, exceedingly thin, exceedingly nice man with a dark mustache and a quiet way about him. He's Fred Strong who reads quite a-bit, draws and likes to go to Adult classes.

When you put your bond away, you discover you haven't any stamps and you'll need them for the letters you're going to write tonight. There's too much of a line at the general delivery window to go back there for stamps, so you decide on the parcel post window where you meet big Harve B. Herr. That wistful expression you may catch flitting across his rugged face is not caused by disappointment in the human race that will never learn to tie packages securely and mark them fragile when they contain a set of cocktail glasses, but is due to the fact that a big guy likes to exercise and he can't seem to wangle that vacation in which to catch up on his swimming.

If Harve is out to lunch, C. M. Palmer, stocky, shorter than Harve, will be in his place. You'll know Palmer by the sardonic gleam in his eye and his dry humor. He's the curbstone public relations man for the postoffice, a buddy of Doc. Staniford, and in general, man about town.

You may not see them on this occasion, but before many daily visits to the postoffice you'll have caught a glimpse over Palmer's or Herr's shoulders of Bill Weil, Ernest Casados and "Pop" Smith busy "slinging" (distributing) the mail in the boxes. Weil and Casados are the babies of the force in age though not in muscle power. "Pop" is a Spanish American War veteran who has sons in the service and though frail in appearance, is mighty in energy and enthusiasm. When not on the job, you may see him about town with his camera taking pictures of Carmel dogs to add to his gallery now boasting dog portraits in the hundreds.

The pleasant-faced, fair-haired, blue-eyed man flying about like a flea behind the scenes is Assistant Postmaster Fred Mylar. Fred is the works that keeps the watch running, the glue that holds the kite together, and a dern fine fellow to know. With all his work in the post office he still finds time to serve as assistant chief of the Volunteer Fire Department and to take out the ambulance when the fire siren blows its ominous double blast.

Back there with Mylar, or relieving at the money order window, is Felix Dowgiallo, round-faced, dark-haired, courteous and rather quiet. He goes to the shops at the Monterey High school at night for training in defense work.

Eventually you'll get a post office box, and when you go to the window to apply for it, you'll probably see tall, slender Elaine Carter with her grey hair piled high on her head creating an atmosphere of great dignity which if you take seriously will lead to your confusion later when you see her whisking about town in her station wagon with its cargo of dogs.

You won't see much of Mrs. Frances Studevant and Mrs. Lucille Zimmerman because they are behind the scenes handling the mail of those exasperating people who misdirect their letters. They also dig up forwarding addresses and pass on the mail of people who have moved or are on vacation, and they are prepared to testify that Carmel is the movingest town for its size in all these United States. Frances, grey-eyed and dark, whose husband is in the Navy Post Office in New Zealand, finds time outside of her job to care for her two children and turn out for Abalone League on Sundays.

Lucille, who is quite small and "quick and quiet as a mouse," to borrow her boss' description, also has an ex-postoffice employe husband in the Navy.

When you get your house, if it's on the Point, in Carmel Woods or Hatton Fields, you'll be seeing Fremont O. Ballou who carries your mail to you in his station wagon. Ill last fall, he stuck gamely to Carmel's one rural delivery route through six varieties of particularly foul weather.

Dick Cummings, who has the star route and brings the mail over the hill from Monterey, lives on the Lower Mesa in a house he and his brother built out of Monterey Pine which they felled and sawed themselves.

If you haven't had any special delivery letters addressed to you yet, you won't have seen William Flewelling, but that detail can be overcome by attending the First Theater in Monterey where he is playing a villain in "From Rags to Riches."

On the day you are delayed in getting to the postoffice until sunset time, you'll notice Dave Nixon, post office custodian, coming in carrying the flag reverently on his arm. He'll enjoy talking to you and have a joke for you. but don't mention dogs to him. What he thinks of dogs who have the bad manners to soil the postoffice floor that he tries to keep spic and span is unmentionable.

And that's the bunch—

But what about the tall slender man, grey-haired, slightly stooped, whose blue eyes look at one with kindliness, whose face suggests that he has lived fully with appreciation and understanding? You noticed him the first time you looked beyond the clerk serving you at one of the windows, and you thought straightway that here is a person you could like very much. Your instinct is correct. A great many people love him, and with reason. He's Acting Postmaster Fred Bechdolt, appointed last fall, and he means many things to many people. To thousands of men throughout the country who have never seen him, he's the signature — "by Fred Bechdolt" — on their favorite action novels. That "by line" has appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, McClures, Argosy—a dozen top flight magazines—over articles and stories. It appeared in the December issue of Blue Book over a book length story. It is soon to appear over a syndicated newspaper serial. To a number of Carmel boys now fighting America's battles

"EDUCATION"

How strange a race of mariners we are:
Heirs to unnumbered tomes of gathered lore,
Our vessels pitch and flounder while we pour
Upon the printed page—the avatar
Of those already wrecked; the treacherous bar
Forgotten—till the storm begins to lower,
Its thunderheads make ready to devour
The temperate winds, the sun, the polar star.

Too busy tabulating to deplore
Quicksilver hours, we argue and confer.
While well-equipped for rational navigation—
Sextant and compass and barometer—
We launch our frail craft from a phantom shore,
Possessed of neither chart nor destination!

—MARION DOYLE.

A DICTATOR'S YOUNG

Teach them to kill before they learn to live,
Armor them against pity, make them hate,
Drill them while they are babes, make them shoot straight,
For they must never weaken, never forgive.

Mix sulphur in their pap, feed them on lead,
Give them steel teething-rings, bend the young shoots
Before they break, raise them on bloody roots,
Trim them to murder for their daily bread.

Grow them to baseness, horror, infamy,
A breed made to your hand, unique, alone,
Streamlined for slaughter, cogs of flesh and bone,
And mesh them to your bidding utterly,
Or else your devil's work will not be done,
When, disillusioned, their task has just begun.

—ALEX R. SCHMIDT.

WIND AND STAR

I heard the wind and answered to its call,
It called so sweetly,
It went over the hill, wrapped in a shawl,
Wrapped up completely.
I ran up the road and looked all around,
I looked everywhere,
But the wind was gone, leaving only sound,
A sob on the air.
I waited in hope the wind would return,
Return as it came,
Take away with it the doubt and concern
It brought as a flame;
But all I heard as I stood in the chill,
And looked near and far,
Was a tree sighing alone on the hill
And a gleaming star.

Instructions for Ration Book 2 Signup Next Week

By HAL GARROTT

Like a breath of fresh air comes this simple questionaire out of bureaucratic Washington! A child could fill it out, and many probably will.

But somebody in your family must fill it out and apply for War Ration Book Two, one book for each member of the family, if you and yours want to keep on eating. Here are simple directions telling you just what to do.

Cut out the blank and fill it in, but don't sign it. That is done before a ration official. One person can report for a whole family.

Take the report and a War Ration Book One for each person you represent to Sunset School in the following alphabetical order.

If your last name begins with a letter from A to D inclusive go on February 23.

If from E to K go February 24.

If from L to S go February 25.

If from T to Z go February 26.

Hours are from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Exceptions: Proprietors of boarding houses, hotels, restaurants, tea rooms, register at Colton Hall, Monterey, any day between February 23 and 26.

Soldiers register at the Presidio or Fort Ord.

George Washington's birthday, February 22, is a holiday and rationing does not begin on the Monterey Peninsula till Tuesday the 23rd, in spite of Eastern news releases to the contrary.

The local board does not follow directions heard over the radio or contained in AP or UP news stories. Local action is taken only after official instructions are received here.

Note that your inventory statement is to include only coffee, commercially canned fruits (including spiced); canned vegetables, fruit and vegetable juices, soups, chili sauce and catsup. Cans under 8 ounces are not counted.

Don't forget to deduct five cans from your inventory for each person represented in your declaration. You'll need 'em. Any size cans over 8 ounces may be deducted.

If you're running low on the goods to be rationed, better buy what you need today, as food stores will sell none of them between February 20 and 28.

But of course, don't over-stock. Coupons will be deducted from your book for all goods declared in your inventory in excess of a total of five cans allowed each person. But in no case will more than half the coupons in your book be taken away from you. Any amount over that will be deducted from a future book.

The ration books are based on forty-eight points to be used weekly. Scarce foods will have a higher point value than those that are plentiful. An 8 ounce can of fruit will carry a value of 8 points.

A complete explanation of how to use War Ration Book Two will be available to everybody immediately after the books are distributed. You may read about it in your newspaper. Also numerous information bureaus are to be set up all over the peninsula manned by voluntary workers, who will straighten out your tangles and supply you with the latest information.

Consumer Declaration

This is the official declaration which consumers will be required to fill out before they receive War Ration Book Two, the point rationing book. To save time at registration, every applicant should clip this declaration out, fill in the answers, and bring it with them to the registration site.

SUNSET SCHOOL NEWS

Good Old Beach

Good old beach, here we come . . On February 22 Sunset School will have a holiday because of George Washington's Birthday. From Tuesday (the twenty-third) to Friday (the twenty-seventh) Ration Book Number Two will be issued. That means we will go to school from eight-thirty until twelve-forty o'clock. I know most of the children from Sunset will take advantage of the sun and water and will all go to the beach. Don't wory about not seeing your best friends around, because if they are smart you will meet on the beach.—DuVal Roberts, 7th Grade.

Students Leave and Enter

Quite a few students have left Sunset because of the new Catholic school near the Carmel Mission. Some of the Sixth and Seventh grade students who have left are June Canoles, Tom Bates and Jim Brettman from the Seventh grade, and Leslie Bracisco, Anton Janda and David McNerney from the Sixth. There are others leaving from the lower grades. There is also another new student in our room. He came from Seattle, Washington, and his name is David Ferguson.—By Frank Timmins, 7th Grade.

Washington

Washington was one of our greatest generals and upholders of freedom. He was indeed a great leader of men. Washington won fame during the Revolutionary period. During this time of strife we should all remember our first President and his deeds. —David Ferguson, 7th Grade.

Summer in February?

Am I going to get nice and red! Now I can go to the beach and enjoy the sunshine. I've been waiting for this a long time, but I really didn't think it would come in February. — Ruth Clark, 5th Grade.

Having Fun on Horses

One Saturday morning Marcia and I went down to Mr. Hodges' stable. We got on horses and we took a ride up the valley. Mr. Hodges went with us. We went through pastures that were beautiful. We saw many things and we had ever so much fun galloping all around. When the war is over

FOR years, Americans have been the world's most active telephone users. To maintain and steadily enlarge the Nation's network of Long Distance lines calls for huge amounts of metals and other materials.

Now those materials have gone to war. For "the duration," the telephone network must get along with about what it has. The soldier with his portable telephone in Africa, the marine with his rifle in the Solomons, the pilot over the Aleutians, need copper, steel and other things—need them more than their fellow-Americans do at home.

Because more telephone lines cannot be built at this time, we make this request:

To the places that are busy with war work, please make only Long Distance calls that are vital.

For your understanding and continued aid—our thanks!

Notre Dame School Opened Monday with Enrollment of 48

The Notre Dame School at Villa Angelica opened on Monday, February 15, with an enrollment of 48 pupils.

At the close of the first day's classes, students and teachers went to the chapel, where Father Michael O'Connell gave Benediction. The hymns, "Come Holy Ghost" and "Holy God We Praise Thy Name" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" were sung by the children. Then followed Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament.

After the Benediction, Father O'Connell spoke to the children, introducing to them Lady Maria Antonia Field, donor of the Villa Angelica, who was present with her sister-in-law and Mrs. Wente, both of San Francisco and little Maria Antonia Field II. A gift of a gold chain and locket was made by the little girl for the statue of the Christ Child.

Present also were members of the Junipero Serra Mothers' club, parents of the pupils and an enthusiastic crowd of friends and well-wishers of the new school who entirely filled the chapel.

The Notre Dame school hours are from 9:30 to 3:30, to facilitate transportation by bus.

With Hearts and Flowers

The home of Mrs. Grace Howden, on San Luis Avenue, was festive with Valentine decorations on the afternoon of Saturday, February 13, when she entertained the choir girls of the Church of the Wayfarer, making the occasion also a surprise birthday party for Miss Margaret Sherman Lea, church organist. Strains of "Happy Birthday" played on an old-fashioned music box greeted the guests as they came in from the garden where the afternoon began with table tennis. Prizes for the indoor games which followed went to Molly Osgood, Jeanette Reel, Lois Petty, Joan Templin and Eleanor Smith, and then there was a truly beautiful cake, trimmed with pink and white roses and red candles. Mrs. Louis Sawyer, choir mother, and Mrs. Perry Reel assisted the hostess and Dr. James E. Crowther was also a guest. In addition to the prize winners, other members of the girls' choir who partook of Mrs. Howden's hospitality were: Shirley Prudholm, Joy Adele Melrose, Patricia Timbers, Carol Graham, Barba Templin, Patsy and June Delight Canoles, Barbara Mylar and Mary Frances Warfield.

Evening of Bird Pictures

Noel Sullivan was host on Saturday evening to a gathering of about twenty friends, among them Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Dali and Mrs. Laurel Reynolds, wife of Commander T. Eric Reynolds, now serving with the Navy in the South Pacific. Mrs. Reynolds showed her magnificent colored moving pictures of bird life in California—comprising all varieties of birds from the garden type to the gull, and the eagle. So enthusiastic was her audience that it is hoped a future showing of the pictures may be arranged for the public and especially for Carmel school children.

Carmel Shouldn't Complain

Mrs. Louise Hasty made a trip to Atascadero last week and ran squarely into a food shortage situation which residents of the Peninsula haven't yet encountered. She found a stage center practically the only food dispensary, and that lined deep with army wives seeking breakfasts for hungry children. Three restaurants on the main street were closed and the hotel serving no meals and so crowded that she was forced to sleep in the lobby. All her friends in Atascadero who had guest rooms had already rented them. Mrs. Hasty walked a half mile down the highway, found herself a cup of coffee at a roadside stand and sped back to Carmel.

Chills! That Man Walks Again in "The Glass Key"

Dashiell Hammett who did "The Thin Man" and "Maltese Cross" stories for pictures, thought up an attractive three-cornered romance with dramatic mystery combined when he authored "The Glass Key," showing in its film version today and tomorrow at the Carmel theater.

Veronica Lake is the little lady who causes the team of Brian Donlevy, political boss, and Alan Ladd, his right-hand-man, to get into a plot that unravels with typical Dashiel Hammett surprises.

Playing with "The Glass Key" on a double feature bill is the film, "Pierre of the Plains" starring John Carroll and Ruth Hussey.

Those who have been waiting to see the last picture Lieut. Clark Gable made for the screen will welcome "Somewhere I'll Find You," opening Sunday. This is a drama of love and adventure with Gable in the role of a war correspondent in the Far East.

George Brent and Brenda Marshall play in the mystery-romance, "You Can't Escape Forever" scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday with "Ice Capades Revue." In the latter, Ellen Drew, Richard Denning and Jerry Colonna have the leading roles.

Mickey Rooney's hit picture, "A Yank at Eton" comes for next Friday and Saturday with Freddie Bartholomew cast as his newly acquired English stepbrother. Double-billed with the Rooney picture is "The Payoff" starring Lee Tracy and Evelyn Brent. These films will be shown at the Saturday matinee.

Back from "Down Under," the Hairs Are Here to Stay

Major and Mrs. W. J. Hairs arrived in Carmel last week for an indefinite stay. Time was when their coming and going between Carmel and Melbourne, Australia, where Maj. Hairs' main commercial interests in connection with semi-precious jewels and antiques lie, were somewhat in the nature of a commuter's routine. But that was when Maj. Hairs was owner of Merle's Treasure Chest on Ocean Avenue — and before the war.

It's been 26 months since sprightly, genial Maj. Hairs and his popular wife were here, but he insists that the place smells like home. They didn't fly here, however, because since the day, some years ago, when he was guest of honor at a military demonstration in Texas, and partook in a flight where the pilot "gave him the works", flying makes his legs feel like stewed rhubarb.

This English veteran of the Boer War and of World War I is keenly sensitive to the entente friendly existing between the natives of his two adopted homes — the United States and Australia. He was in Melbourne when General MacArthur arrived and has attended many of the receptions given in his honor and is impressed by the tremendous confidence Australians have in General MacArthur's unquestionable ability.

The homes of Melbourne have been thrown open with limitless hospitality to officers and privates alike, wearing the U. S. uniform. Particularly, says the Major with a twinkle, are the platinum blondes, the brunettes and the redheads struck by the cleanliness, smartness and extreme courtesy of our boys toward the Australian womenfolk. The strict Sunday custom of closing all moving picture houses and theaters has sent many a lad to church for want of other entertainment, he adds.

The home of Major and Mrs. Hairs has welcomed a number of Carmel boys during the past months, among them Captain W. L. Martin and Stanley Clay.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Student Court in High School

As a last step in establishing complete student government in the high school, a student court has been formed. The function of this governmental organ is to try and to convict, if guilty, offenders against class, corridor and speeding rules. The court consists of a judge, appointed by the student-body president, a jury composed of the student council, a prosecuting attorney, attorney for defense, court clerk, and sergeant at arms. Sentences administered by the court range from 30 minutes in detention and a 500 word essay, to recommendation for the suspension from school of any student, if such drastic action is necessitated. Surprizingly enough, the efficiency of the court is such that discipline has improved, and will improve still more in the future. — Jim Handley, Student Court Judge.

A New Viewpoint on Lincoln

In the morning, Thursday, February 11, all the Carmel high school student body was listening to a talk given by Doctor Sisson. This talk was on Lincoln, but, in the manner of a good and experienced lecturer, he branched off into other interesting subjects. The subject all finally merged on Lincoln, and the students were glad to find out that the speech was not going to be on the good, old subject of Mrs. Bixby and her five, poor sons. Dr. Sisson told us, instead of the hurt many modern universities might have done for Lincoln. In a modern university he might have lost his common touch. The real reason why Lincoln was leading the country during the Civil War was because of the man's great humanity. The applause given by the student body at the end of his talk was tribute enough to this speaker. We hope that Carmel high school will continue to give us such interesting speakers.—Ann Pierce.

Big Game Tonight

One of the biggest basketball games of the season is scheduled to be played tonight, 7:15, February 19, in the Carmel high school gym. Our Padres are playing the Monterey team. We are calling this particular contest "the big game" because Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel are tied in number one place for the league championship.

The student body of C. H. S. want a large turnout for this big event; how about coming to the game to cheer your team to victory?—A. Cassati.

To the Pine Cone Cymbal he's the friend to whom we can go when the heart-breaking news comes that one of Carmel's boys has met death in action and say, "We're relatively new here. We don't know this boy but you did. Will you write something for us that will make it a little easier for the town to bear its loss?"—and "Bech" does.

Sunset School Notes

I am going to buy a horse. — Nancy Lee Poklen, 4th Grade.

February is a pretty lucky month for us. We got out last Friday for Lincoln's Birthday, and next Monday we have a holiday for Washington's Birthday. The rest of next week we go to school at 8:30 and get out at 12:40 thanks to food rationing.

Now don't you think we're lucky?—Bob Burgess, 6th Grade.

The boys in our room made an army, navy and air corps base. We have a little flag that goes up and down. The boys are making a look-out tower. There are ships on the ocean and jeeps on the land. There are little soldiers, army nurses and army doctors.

—Shirley Watson, 2nd Grade.

Two Classmates Leave Our Room

Anton Janda and Barbara Bracisco left last Thursday for the Catholic school. Anton was in the sixth grade, and Barbara was in the fifth. We hope that they will come back to visit us. — Louise Daniels, 6th Grade.

Base Ball in the Air

Baseball is starting at Sunset. Basketball and speedball were finished this week. We have two more intramural sports, one is baseball and the other is a track meet. The boys who have the most points for their 'S' after two sports are: Schmutz, Frost, and Gargiulo, who all have eight points, McCreery and Goodrich have seven points, Campbell and Hare have six, and Dewar, Winslow, Greenan and Carpenter have five. To win a block, they must have eleven points in four sports. —Lee Winslow, 7th Grade.

All the students are clapping,
For four hours work we are lacking;
While ration cards are being given out,
We'll be out of school and busy about.
Oh, next week we'll all go to the beach,
So none of the teachers will have to teach;
Let's play while the sun does shine,
As long as the weather is so fine;
The beach is such a cheerful place,
It makes you red all over your face.—Beverly Dowgiallo, 7th Grade.

The King and Queen

Once upon a time, there was a King and Queen. They had twelve sons. One day the king said, "If our thirteenth child happens to be a girl, we will send the 12 sons into the woods, for there is a wood nearby." The Queen began to cry. She told her sons that if it was a girl she would wave a white flag. But if it was a boy she would wave a black one. She said for them to climb the highest tree in the woods. And so they did, and a little girl was born.

One day as the little girl was looking out of the windows she saw the boys in the woods. She asked her mother about them. Then her mother told her they were her twelve brothers. The little girl said, "My twelve brothers?" For she did not know that she had twelve brothers. Then she said, "I will go look for my brothers, but I will be back by sunset." So she went out to find her brothers.

By and by she came to a little house and went in, and there was one of her brothers. She was glad to see him. At night the others came.—Marilyn Westin, 2nd Grade

Gilbert Announces Tin Can Day and Tells Butte Fable

Because of an accident in Butte, Montana, the government can use tin cans, John Gilbert, Carmel Salvage chairman told the Pine Cone Cymbal yesterday.

The Butte accident story may be a fable, Gilbert said. At any rate, he refused to tell it until he had made his important announcement, namely that the post office lot is soon to take on a more respectable appearance without any loss in patriotism on the part of Carmel citizens. A fenced-off area is to be set aside for tin can contributions to the scrap pile. Instead of bringing them in every day, housewives are asked to bring them on one specified day each month. The first designated Tin Can Day is to be next Monday. After that, Carmel citizens are asked not to bring tin cans to the post office lot until they receive notice that another Tin Can Day has been set. Meanwhile, they are to save the cans at home, and Gilbert wishes to remind Carmel residents that there is a city ordinance prohibiting the disposal of tin cans in the home garbage container.

On the Wednesday following Tin Can Day, the city will collect the cans on the post office lot and haul them to the storage shed in Monterey.

The once-a-month Tin Can Day is to be a Peninsula-wide institution, it was decided when Mayors P. A. McCreery, Carmel; J. R. Perry, Monteey; City Manager Erwin Dames, Pacific Grove; Salvage Chairmen: John Gilbert, Carmel; Tinsley C. Fry, Monterey; Col. Chas. Daly, Pacific Grove; B. J. Pardee, Monterey City Manager and Mrs. Robert Stanton, Peninsula chairman, met for lunch at when Mr. Williams lectured on his observations and experiences in the country where he had spent so many years of thoughtful study.

Of his newly published book, "The Russians," Joseph E. Davies, Ambassador to Russia, makes the recommendation that "everyone should read it who wishes to be informed upon that very vital situation. It is also," he adds, "a very human document and fascinating reading."

Louis Bromfield writes:

"The book is admirably organized for the average intelligent reader. It provides fact and interpretation and explains as well as any book I know the Russian story, and more clearly and sympathetically than most. Above all it explains with remarkable clarity and conviction the record of solidarity and heroism in Russia."

Rhys Williams is at present on a lecture tour which has carried him through the East and brought him to Los Angeles, where for the moment he and his family are living.

CALIFORNIA WOMEN on the Farm

Heroines! Our farm women of California . . . they say so. But they are!
Up at black dawn. Putting on the uniform of WORK . . . khaki or blue denim—copper riveted.
Hair in a bright bandana. Complexion by Nature the great cosmetician.

Mothers and daughters working the acres on the home place. Brothers and cousins and neighbor boys off to war.
Soil to be turned, seeds to be sown and crops to be harvested.
And there are always the house to tend and meals to prepare.

That's the California farm today. Sun-up till the last chore is done. The job is BIG.
Food for Freedom. Fighting food for fighting men. Food for Health for a Nation at War.
The pay is BIG. It is pay in Satisfaction of a job well done.
It is pay in Pride that swells the heart — big as all Humanity.
It is pay in filling the bellies of Liberty Ships.
It is pay when a tired, stubble faced boy grins and says, "Hot diggity—California peaches!"

Such are our smart, modern women on the farms of California. They watch sun-up brighten the skies and see there the promise of America at Peace. They see ahead the new developments which will add to the comforts and conveniences and labor-saving devices now in their homes and on their farms. And waiting for Peace are television, marvels in new lighting, wonders in glass and plastics. California will have a great share of these things, you may be sure.

SUNDAY, FEB. 21, 1943

"Africa's Race Question" will be the sermon theme on Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. Does the Atlantic Charter include Africa, a continent four times the area of the United States? Because of its immense mineral and agricultural wealth, it has been almost entirely "acquired" by European powers. In their own ancestral land the aboriginal population has no political rights. With ten people of color to one white, can the Four Freedoms be made operative? The service begins at eleven; visitors are cordially invited. Miss Eleanor Smith will be guest organist, playing the following selections: "Prelude in E Minor," Chopin; "Melody," Czerny; "Ave Maria," Robert Franz; "Offertory," Leybach; "Largo," Handel.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Mind" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, February 21, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Golden Text will be: "The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it stand," (Isaiah 14:24).

Other Bible citations will include: "And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it . . . And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more," (Isaiah 2:2,4).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "With one Father, even God, the whole family of man would be brethern; and with one Mind and that God, or good, the brotherhood of man would consist of Love and Truth, and have unity of Principle and spiritual power which constitute divine Science," (p. 469).

Red Cross Consultant Visits Nursing Services

Mrs. Elizabeth Kulcher, American Red Cross nursing consultant for the Central California area has been in Carmel this week to meet with the chairmen of the various Red Cross Nusing services, namely, Mrs. Edna Herlofsen, chairman of Nurse's Aide; Mrs. J. Weaver Kitchen, chairman of Home Nursing and Mrs. Will Martin, Key Nurse.

Mrs Kulcher's program in Carmel has been a full one. Arriving Monday morning, she attended the Junior Red Cross Home Nursing class held at noon at the high school, spent the afternoon at Headquarters in conference with chapter personnel, and in the evening was present at the first meeting of the new Nurse's Aide class.

Tuesday morning she spent in conference with the Nurse's Aide committee, which consists of Mrs. Edna Herlofson, Miss Kathleen Goodfellow, Miss Helen Carter, Miss K. Smits and Miss Elizabeth Kynaston. All of this is in connection with the American Red Cross-National Broadcasting Company War Nursing campaign, toward which Carmel has a quota of two war nurses, five Nurses' Aides, and one hundred home nursing students. These quotas have been met, although the thirteen weeks campaign is only four weeks old. However, many more women are needed in all of these services, and communities such as Carmel must make up for deficiencies in other areas. So further enrollments are urged and new classes will be formed as the present ones are completed.

Adult School

Rationing Doesn't Affect Adult Classes

Although both Sunset School and the Carmel High School will have no school on Washington's Birthday and will be in session only during the morning hours for the remainder of the week, the Carmel Adult School will continue on its regular schedule, with but one exception. Ernest Calley's regular Monday night class in woodwork and pottery voted to meet on Wednesday night instead. Other Monday classes will be held as usual.

GARDEN CLASS

At the initial meeting of the Victory Garden class last Monday afternoon, it was decided by those present to meet next Monday in spite of the holiday for Washington's birthday. The group was very enthusiastic about the possibilities for the future of the class, and attendance next Monday promises to be larger. For the next few weeks Mrs. Lster Rowntree will continue to conduct the class, with the assistance of local gardeners. Guest speakers will be invited for future meetings of the class.

The Junior Red Cross has been supervising the book drive for Carmel High for three weeks and so far the response has been fair.

Our quota is at least one book from each student, and we have received 134 books and the enrollment is approximately 250 students.

Last week the Junior Red Cross made $5.25 on a benefit volley ball game, refereed by Miss Gulnert, the girls athletic teacher. The money will be used to buy 25c pocket editions of books.

These book swil go to the boys in the service, home and abroad, and the USO's. —Stanley Ewig.

Gilbert Announces Tin Can Day

the Del Monte Golf Club House Monday noon to work out a tidier disposal plan.

Gilbert had one more announcement to make before he would get on with the Butte accident.

For the last time next Wednesday city trucks will call at people's homes to pick up heavy scrap iron. Anyone who has anything they want collected should telephone C. D. office, 1906 on or before Wednesday, preferably before.

As for the Butte Accident. The story starts with what becomes of the tin cans after they leave the storage shed in Monterey. They were taken to the Thermit and Metal Co.'s plant where the tin is removed. The remainder of the can, which is iron, is shredded and sent to the cooper smelters where a copper sulphate solution is run over them so that copper is precipitated and the iron becomes iron sulphate at which point the usefulness of the tin cans is over, since they have served their purpose as a precipitating agent in getting the copper out of the solution. That iron scrap may be used as a precipitating agent for copper sulphate solution was discovered by accident some years ago.

At the Butte smelters, the copper sulphate solution, a by-product in the smelting of copper ore was drained off into a handy creek as useless. Then one day the company tore down an old mill, and some of the iron scrap was dumped into the creek. Months later someone wanted an iron bar for something or other and went down to the creek. He found that the creek bed was lined with pure copper, and that the iron had disappeared.

Gilbert says he can't prove it but it's a good story.

Troupers Present From Rags to Riches Tonight

"From Rags to Riches," hair-raising melodrama, followed by an olio of new and astonishing acts, opens tonight at the First Theater, Monterey, to run through the weekend. Irene Alexander has directed the Troupers of the Gold Coast in the production, Rhoda Johnson has made the costumes, and Franklin Dixon the settings.

Katie Martin, who came to Carmel from the Pasadena Playhouse where she studied direction and theater art, will be starred as Flossie, the innocent flower of the New York Bowery. Flossie is lured to the apartment of the false Prince Charlie, there to defend her virtue by the extreme means of substituting a marble statue for herself in a sack, which the betraying villain carries off, thinking he has the lovely Flossie.

Barbara Stitt, as Myrtle, who extends her criminal activities as the villain's accomplice to a bit of fancy poisoning, is welcomed back on the First Theater stage. Always excellent, Barbara shows the advantage of her experience in playing prominent roles in the Shakespeare Festivals.

Louise Welty, who has played more performances on the First Theater stage than any other Trouper, will be seen this time in a character part as Mother Murphy. Jim Jensen, Carmel High school boy, has his first major role with the Troupers, appearing as Ned, Bowery newsboy and protecting brother of Flossie.

Wilma Bott as Gertrude does her usual competent characterization, showing her background of experience in Chicago stock companies. William Flewelling, as Slade, the hardened Bowery owner of a dive with an opium ring in the offing, will be one of the surprises of the evening.

Jess Ojeda as Dan, the Bowery cop; Allan Sonin as Albert Cooper; Darwin Law as Prince Charlie, Wayne Edwards as Giles; Ruth Bizzini, as Vera, Franklin Dixon as Montgomery and Mimi Rookledge as the messenger boy, complete the cast. Darwin Law will also be seen as M.C.

Frances Taylor

By DENE DENNY

Miss Frances Taylor passed away in her San Francisco apartment at the Warrington, on Post street, last Monday. Her going leaves her sister, Mrs. Paxton Howard, and her many devoted friends in San Francisco and in Carmel with a deep sense of loss.

Of an old and prominent San Francisco family, Frances Taylor was a fascinating combination of Victorian tradition and appreciation of the contemporary trend. She belonged to the Browning Society, which afforded her rare pleasure. At the same time, she was one of the first to attend ultra-modern music recitals, listening valiantly to Shoenberg and Hindemith in the first performance in San Francisco of their works.

The years she spent in Europe of the old days, where she attended concerts daily, hearing all the operas and great artists of the period, made one of her dearest memories.

Frances Taylor came to Carmel nearly twenty years ago. With delight and satisfaction she walked into her house on San Carlos and First street, which she had practically ordered of Mike Murphy by telephone. Straightway she loved Carmel as she loved old San Francisco and as only "old Carmelites" love it. She loved the bumpy street that led to her home —which her house immediately became. She loved the winding road and the trail that was at that time the only way to town through Dolores street. She lined her living room with her hundreds of books, had Alphonso bring wild currant into her garden, and ferns from the valley.

She loved Carmel Valley. When Robles del Rio opened up, she drove past the Del Monte Ranch where her parents honeymooned, straight to the top of a hill at the Southern end of the tract, and there she asked "Denny and Watrous" to build her another house. This time she went to Boston while the house was being built, and again, when she returned she walked straight into a house "complete," and adored every inch of it. Hundreds of friends dined with Frances Taylor in her valley home, and know what that little wooden house on the hill meant to her.

All the while she kept her apartment at the Fairmont Hotel, lending it generously to friends, while she spent more and more time in Carmel. Later she moved to the Warrington in San Francisco, and her health seeming to demand it, lived most of her latter days there.

Frances Taylor supported everything cultural. She was a member of the Carmel Music Society, one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the Bach Festival; she belonged to the Woman's Club. Sunday mornings always found her in the Episcopal Church. She was a generous contributor to St. Luke's Hospital.

I don't suppose anyone will ever know how many people she quietly helped, how many lives she enriched and constructively helped. Frances Taylor had the kind of capacity for friendship of which classic literature has sung. She was of the very essence of the quality that hung on at Corregidor. Gallant, indomitable, brave, gay and generous, she had a Rock-of-Gibraltar integrity and loyalty. She loved America and she loved England. Her pungent wit helped her to meet every experience with fortitude and unfaltering courage.

They Did It Here

"Psychology Through Literature," edited by Caroline Shrodes, Justine Van Lundy and Richard W. Husband, has just made its appearance in the bookshops, the result of the trio's literary labor during their stay in Carmel.
